Both Sides Hoping For Settlement

Union Leaders go Back Into Huddle; Ford Company Gives Statement of Trouble

DETROIT, Dec. 13.—(AP)—While some union leaders resumed limited negotiations with General Motors Corp., others more hopefully went back into huddle today to map further strategy for speeding up settlement of their wage fight with the Ford Motor Co.

Negotiators for both Ford and the CIO United Automobile Workers appeared still conciliatory despite a company blast at overall union policy and a union reply that the attack was "provocative."

Richard T. Leonard, UAW-CIO Ford director, admitted he was not "very happy" over the outcome of yesterday's wage parleys, but said he would press the union's demand for a 30 per cent wage increase at the next session with the company Friday.

Union officials have expressed the belief a settlement with any of the "Big Three" auto producers would set a pattern which would help solve disputes with the others.

Santa Claus Will Not be Here Friday

Santa Claus is going to postpone his visit to Sedalia. He will not be here Friday afternoon as previously announced, because of the bad weather and so much sickness.

Retail merchants, who were going to entertain Santa Claus and have a party for the children have postponed the affair, which will probably be held next week. Due announcement, however, will be made prior to his coming.

Motorists are Warned to Drive Slowly

Snow is Packed, Streets and Sidewalks Slick

Travel is hazardous and motorists are warned to drive carefully and slowly. The five inch snowfall, which began Wednesday night, has been packed on the streets and sidewalks causing them to be extremely slippery. Numerous minor or automobile accidents have occurred, but only one was reported to the police department, however no arrest was made.

The most serious accident to occur this afternoon was that of Joe Graves, 64 years old, 515 East Third street, who slipped and fell at Third street and Lamine avenue. Mr. Graves suffered a fracture of the left hip, according to an X-ray picture taken at the Bothwell hospital, where he is being treated by Dr. C. B. Trader.

Mr. Graves was taken to the hospital in a taxicab which was passing the scene at the time.

City Employees Busy

James I. Collins, city engineer, began early Wednesday afternoon to putting employees of the Streets and Alley Department on the streets to cinder down crossings, and clear pedestrian crossings in the downtown area and around the various schools in the city.

Mr. Collins reported his men, Wednesday evening, while hauling trucks loaded with cinders to various stop and grade crossings, made dangerous by the packing snow, assisted at least 100 motorists in getting their cars "unstuck." As they went along the streets motorists endeavoring to drive away from the curb found their cars were stuck and the wheels began spinning. The city workers would scoop a shovel full of cinders, scatter them under the wheels and the driver would be on his or her way.

Using Fine Chat

Instead of using a chemical on street crossings, of cinders, which would be tracked into store buildings and homes, a fine chat is being used on the crossings.

"It is the first time in several years, that I have seen a snow as slick as this," Mr. Collins said. He explained that due to the fact no rain fell it was nothing but snow, packed hard, it was very slippery and extremely dangerous, as slick as ice.

Patrol Warning

The State Highway Patrol has issued a warning to motorists who must drive on the highways to drive carefully and slowly. They report practically the entire state covered with snow, and the highways slick. Curves and hills have been cindered, but in spots they, too, are slick and dangerous.

By the Associated Press

With practically all of the state of Missouri shivering under a blanket of snow today, the weather bureau warns that temperatures in the northwest portion of the state will take a dip to from five to 15 degrees tonight.

Kansas City reached the season's snowfall record last night with a reported four inches while Jefferson City, St. Joseph, and Kirksville followed closely with three inches of snow.

Springfield rates of one inch every two hours this morning and it was expected to continue all day.

The highway patrol reported that traffic was at a virtual standstill at Jefferson City last night, with the conditions expected to get worse with poor visibility and slick roads.

For tonight, the weather bureau forecasts generally fair weather in the northeast or light rain is expected to precede the snow in the southeast section.

Low temperatures for tonight will reach from five to fifteen degrees in the northwest and 15 to 25 in the east and south.

Asserting conditions would not improve for 60 or 90 days and "probably get worse if there is a steel strike," the company told the union that labor troubles in supplier plants had tied up 15 to 25 essential items.

"We can't understand," it continued, "why the whole UAW-CIO strategy has been to come forward now when things are critical and when we really are not in production, and demand more wages."

"Three or four months ago," the statement said, "we at the Ford Motor Co. believed we would be in full production by this time. We thought we could have produced 80,000 automobiles. Actually we are not much farther ahead than we were then—we've made about 20,000 automobiles." (A later total raised the figure to 25,897.)

Opposition To Ceilings On Building

Most Outspoken Criticism From Real Estate Men

By Marvin L. Arrowsmith
WASHINGTON, Dec. 13.—

Administration endorsed legislation to fix price ceilings on new and existing houses ran into stiff opposition today.

The most outspoken criticism of the proposed control program approved by President Truman came from real estate circles.

On Capitol Hill, a spot check of the house banking committee considering the price-fixing legislation disclosed that a number of members believe Mr. Truman already has sufficient authority to deal with the housing program.

This sentiment was echoed by the National Association of Home Builders, which said the imminent restoration of building materials to a priorities system made price ceilings unnecessary.

Frank W. Cortwright, executive vice president of the association, said his organization would continue to oppose ceilings as unrealistic and unworkable, and as a stumbling block to solving the housing problem.

Will Pay for Shelter

He told reporter Mr. Truman's program for channeling 50 per cent of all building materials to residential dwellings costing $10,000 or less would help all home prices in line.

"I don't think people will be foolish enough to pay ridiculous prices for homes," Cortwright said, "and that means builders won't be able to charge them."

The national housing agency, on the other hand, said in a statement.

"When people want shelter, they want it bad. Within limits, many people will pay any price for a place to live."

Future Looks Bright

Cortwright said home builders have been getting only about 30 per cent of available construction supplies, and that with this increased to 50 per cent under the new program there is good chance that a goal of 500,000 new homes in 1946 can be realized.

In Omaha, President Van Holt Garrett of the National Association of Real Estate Boards said imposition of ceilings would be a "very dangerous step." The association, in a statement issued in Washington, commented that ceilings could nullify any benefits resulting from restoration of building material priorities.

E. P. Neef Admitted To the Hospital

Emil P. Neef, 315 West Fifth street, assistant secretary of the Missouri Bankers' association, was admitted to the Bothwell hospital today for treatment to his left leg injured while hunting last Sunday.

It is believed that when he took several quick steps to go after a quail, a blood vessel in the leg was ruptured. His condition is not serious.

Quartered on Board

After arrival on November 30 at the Philippines' capital the ship anchored in the harbor and the nurses have quarters on board.

Lieut. Curry described a tour of Manila, where she said, hardly two stones are left together. Small children go unclothed and conditions are deplorable in the war-torn city. Many ships are upended in the harbor and the wreckage is all about.

Walking on the decks was a major operation, she reported, and even sitting in a chair was hazardous. Lieut. Curry continued, explaining that once the chair in which she had been attempting to recline, slid along as the boat dipped and collided with a bulkhead.

Senate Chided, Likened to Unruly Mules

President Pro Tem Raps for Order, but It Does no Good

JEFFERSON CITY, Dec. 13.—(AP)—Missouri senators were likened to unruly mules last night as Sen. Roy D. Miller (R) of Columbia pleaded for his colleagues to "bring order out of this chaos."

Miller said he had watched senate decorum get progressively worse and added:

"I've driven mules a lot and I found they were the same way. You give in a little and the mule keeps going a little farther until finally you have to pull up on the reins."

"Mr. President, you're going to have to pull up on the reins here if we're going to get anything done."

Miller said he was "heartily ashamed of the things we're doing here" in violating rigid parliamentary standards.

In 1939 all prisoners with tattooing on them were ordered to report to the dispensary, the affidavit said. "No one knew what the purpose was. But after the tattooed prisoners were examined, the ones with the best and most artistic specimens were kept in the dispensary and then were killed by injections."

"I wish you'd observe the rules a little better, particularly regarding decorum in debate, and I think we'll all get along better."

The senate, long proud of its reputation for dignity, had been shamed gently a few minutes before by Republican Floor Leader H. R. Williams of Cassville.

He read an excerpt from an account of a night house session in 1872, when most of the members were reported drunk and disorderly, and said he hoped the senate wouldn't find itself in a similar situation.

Entirely Too Noisy

"I've observed that it's been entirely too noisy in here today," he said. "I've rapped for order several times but it doesn't seem to have done any good."

Cattle and Hogs Lost in Fire

KAHOKA, Mo., Dec. 13.—(AP)—About 100 head of hogs and 12 head of cattle burned to death early today in a fire which destroyed the barn of the Kahoka Sales company, a nearby blacksmith shop and damaged at least two other buildings.

The barn, built as the Tucker livery stable 65 years ago, housed the Kahoka Community sale. The stock had been sold at a public sale yesterday and left in the barn. Several other animals were turned loose to escape the flames.

The volunteer fire department fought the blaze for several hours during a heavy snowstorm.

Appointed On Board

JEFFERSON CITY, Dec. 13.—(AP)—Appointment of Everett Johns of St. Joseph and Bruce Williams of Joplin to the state board of registration for architects and professional engineers was confirmed by the senate today.

Williams is already a board member. Williams was chosen by Gov. Phil M. Donnelly to succeed Ernest E. Howard of Kansas City.

Unbelievable Horrors

She also visited Corregidor and found horrors there unbelievable. The stench of dead flesh still persists and is unbearable. Piles of bones and clothing are scattered around Japanese prisoners, under the direction of American military authorities, are being made to exhume bodies of persons sealed in caves.

As they left the frightful place a companion of the Sedalia nurse looked back over his shoulder and tersely remarked: "And they call us civilized," referring to human beings.

Lieut. Curry, who is assigned to the 500-bed hospital ship, did not know how long she would be in Manila, but while there anticipated contacting Lieut. Camille Shank, another army nurse, who was a Smith-Cotton high school classmate. Lieut. Shank, now of Kansas City, is assigned to a 5,000-bed hospital in the Manila area.

Unbelievable Horrors

In outlying districts a number of beautiful places, that were untouched in the ravages of the conflict, are in contrast to the scenes in the city proper, Lieut. Curry commented.

Human Skin Lamp Shades As Evidence

Chosen by Nazis Because of Most Artistic Tattoos

By Noland Norgaard

NUERNBERG, Dec. 13.—(AP)—

A preserved human head and lamp shades made of human skin were presented as evidence of atrocities in Nazi concentration camps at the war crimes trial of 21 top German war leaders today.

The grisly exhibits were added to the Germans' own records of murder and brutality placed before the four power international military tribunal by Allied prosecutors charging the once-powerful Nazi warlords with "crimes against humanity."

Relating the already-revealed horrors of the notorious concentration camps at Hause and Buchenwald, U. S. assistant prosecutor Thomas J. Dodd declared that "we feel no argument is necessary to support our statement that the Nazi conspirators used these concentration camps as places of terror."

Merry-Go-Round

by Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13 — The other day in New York a man known to almost every newspaper editor in the country, yet almost unknown to the general public, quietly departed the "Merry-Go-Round" and the "My Days" he had helped to develop and went on to a more peaceful world.

He was George Carlin, guiding genius of the United Features syndicate, who cracked the whip over the greatest conglomeration of star syndicated columnists the world has ever seen and who, for better or for worse, served as midwife, patron saint and godfather to this column when it was first started, 12 years ago today.

When I indicate George Carlin was a whip-cracker, perhaps I give the wrong impression. For George could and sometimes did crack the whip. But on the whole he was the mildest-mannered man I ever knew. Perhaps that was the secret of his ability to get along with such a motley assortment of performers as Westbrook Pegler, Pearson and Allen, Mrs. Roosevelt, Heywood Broun, Ernie Pyle, Raymond Clapper, Marquis Childs and Tom Stokes.

Outsiders marveled at how one man could keep this circus of trained seals performing in one ring with no visible evidence of cannibalism. Yet he did. He even kept Mrs. Roosevelt happy, while Pegler, in an adjoining column, was holding her feet up to the hot coals almost every other day. In fact, George was the only man I ever knew who could censor and edit the First Lady, yet be invited to the White House continually.

And on those annual occasions when the publishers gathered in New York, Pegler and Mrs. Roosevelt and the rest of us would stand side by side in the receiving line no matter what one had written about the other, to play host to the publishers—all because we loved George Carlin. For no one else would we have done it.

A lot of people wondered not only how George kept the peace among his performers, but also how he stood the daily grind of running his far-flung syndicate. For he handled comic strips and all sorts of other features. The secret was that George lived for his work. The columnists were his children. They might be problem children, but they were his and he loved them.

Came the day when his children went off to other things and George, like many parents, wilted. Two of his greatest writers, Ernie Pyle and Ray Clapper, were war casualties. That zestful tilt of lances, Westbrook Pegler, had Roy Howard trouble (Roy was George Carlin's overall boss on United Features). So did the Merry-Go-Round. We went off to other

OFFENSIVE IN BURMA

IT was decided that an offensive in North Burma should be undertaken in the winter of 1943 and 1944, and that the Ledo Road from Assam, then under construction by American engineers, should be extended to the old Burma Road at Mongyu as rapidly as the offensive operations progressed. It was also decided to build a pipe line from Calcutta to Assam and another paralleling the Ledo Road. These lines would greatly increase the flow of motor fuels to China.

At the same conference it was decided to enlarge the capacity of the Hump route to 20,000 tons a month. The plan for the bombing of the Japanese Islands by B-29's operating out of China was reviewed and accepted at the QUADRANT Conference. The air plan for the reduction of Japan, adopted at the conference, fore-saw the establishment of super-fortress bases in the Pacific to subject Japan to the same devastating air attack that was to prepare Germany for assault by our ground forces. The target of the air route and new overland supply route to China established at this first Quebec conference, was 85,000 tons per month of general stores and 54,000 tons of petroleum products, which would move via the pipe line.

These decisions regarding the Ledo Road, the increase of Hump tonnage, the construction of pipe lines, and the campaign in North Burma generally presented a most difficult and trying problem to the Combined Chiefs of Staff. Ocean tonnage, transport planes for possible airborne operations to break the stalemate in Italy, an increase in the inflow of troops into the United Kingdom for OVERLORD, assistance for General MacArthur's campaign in the Southwest Pacific, and other urgent requirements all had to be taken into consideration in the light of our limitations in resources. Sacrifices would be required somewhere but if made at the wrong place they

Pain in the lower back region extending down one or both sciatic nerves may be caused by injury or degeneration of a cartilage in the spine. In severe, recurrent cases it is often necessary to remove the piece of cartilage which is compressing the nerve. Backache and sciatica, formerly ascribed to sacroiliac strain, may have been caused by cartilage difficulty.

The cartilages in the spine act as shock absorbers. These flat, oval structures between the bones contain the soft remnants of a tissue around which the cartilages are formed. Each disk is held together by a strong band of tissue around the edge.

Strain Causes Bulge

Eric Johnston came within an inch of resigning as president of the United States chamber of commerce over the issue of continuing price control. Johnston believed in maintaining price control even beyond June 30 of next year.

But, last week, U. S. chamber of commerce directors voted to issue a blast calling for immediate suspension of price control. Johnston fought it. Finally he won out only after price chief Chester Bowles addressed the board of directors at a hush-hush luncheon in the Hotel Statler. . . . Secretary of State Byrnes told a secret meeting of congressmen including DeLacy of Washington, Patterson, Healy and Douglas of California and Biemiller of Wisconsin. Byrnes said about 3,000 Jap soldiers are being shipped home from China daily, with about another 300,000 yet to go. He admitted that American lend-leasing agencies, as had Heywood Broun before us.

Gradually, through no fault of his own, George Carlin's performing circus disintegrated. He took on new performers—top performers—though they didn't snarl so much at each other. Perhaps it was because they didn't cause him as much trouble as his earlier prima donnas, or perhaps it was because he loved his first children best; anyway the excitement, the turmoil, the hurly-burly passed out of George's life.

And the other day he quietly went on to another world, where I like to think of him with Ray Clapper, Ernie Pyle and Heywood Broun, pounding out masterpieces for a new public truly appreciative of their great genius, a world free of wars and bloodshed and the puny pettiness of mankind.

After they left, Senator Brewster of Maine proposed that the committee make the sole decision regarding publication of the letters and that Marshall not be permitted to remain. So the former chief of staff went outside and warmed a chair with Ferguson and Lucas in Barkley's outer office.

Only Representative Clark of North Carolina and Murphy of Pennsylvania had any doubts about making the entire letters public. They did not insist upon a vote, however, and the committee finally agreed to ignore Marshall's secrecy plea. When the

A lot of lobby talk has centered around two minor leaguers, Clinton Hartung, bought by the New York Giants from Minneapolis and reputed to be a terrific hitter, and Eddie Erautt, a pitcher on whom the Cincinnati Reds have an option. Hartung, who cost the Giants 20G's and two players could have been drafted last month for $7,500, . . . Erautt, bid as a $50,000 prospect, will cost the Reds just half that if they exercise the option they got from Hollywood when they sent Buck Fawcett there. . . . But the Star's boss Oscar Reichow, says he wouldn't be surprised if Cincinnati put out another $10,000 to get Erautt this season. . . . Kiwanis Club Has Turkey Dinner-Party

Louis Satorius Was Master Of Ceremonies

Sedalia Kiwanians, their wives, and invited guests were entertained at a turkey dinner-Christmas party in the Ambassador room of Hotel Bothwell Wednesday night.

Following the dinner President Clyde Heynen introduced the program chairman Harry E. Lindstrom who in turn presented Lou Satorius as master of ceremonies.

The subsequent program was in a humorous vein beginning with distribution and exchange of white elephant gifts and a series of toasts to members by Ed McLaughlin. Then Capt. A. R. Rush appeared as a college professor and exponent on matrimonial advice. George H. Scruton conducted an experiment in "psychometry" in which members were scored on their proficiency. William Olenfritz scoring high and receiving a badge of merit.

Friendship Circle

A friendship circle stunt brought awards to Ray Hunt and Mrs. Rush, presentations being made by the Rev. H. U. Campbell. A mirthful I. Q. Cuties contest was conducted by Glen E. Neely.

In a hat for Hollywood contest Dr. H. B. Hunter, Bill Iggenfritz and Ed McLaughlin originated some novel hat creations on the heads of Mrs. Hunter, Mrs. James Denny and Mrs. McLaughlin, the latter winning the prize. While members wore paper mustachios, song fest was led by Abe Rosenthal, with Mrs. Nellie Monegan accompanist. This feature was enhanced by a series of quartet numbers by Burney Morris, Abe Rosenthal, Ralph Benningfield and Dr. Maunders.

At the close of the program Rev. Fr. A. J. Brunswick, president-elect, spoke on the significance of the Christmas season, that while it is a joyous one throughout the world, all should remember the deeper religious significance with prayer and church attendance.

Offer Bill for Consideration

JEFFERSON CITY, Dec. 13—(AP)—Missouri's senators had another department-creating bill before them today. It would set up a new department of corrections, in line with a suggestion offered by Gov. P. Phil M. Donnelly recently.

The department would be operated by a director appointed by the governor at a salary up to $7,500 a year. He would supervise three major corrections divisions—penal institutions, educational institutions and the board of probation and parole.

The penal division would include the prisons for mature convicts, while the educational division would operate the three training schools for minors.

Personnel of all divisions, except for the administrative heads, would be under a bipartisan merit system. The training schools would be supervised by a director and a board of training schools, the board consisting of three members from each of the two political parties and appointed by the governor. The board would appoint the training school director at a salary up to $6,000.

The board of probation and parole would be comprised of three members appointed by the governor. They would appoint their own executive secretary at a salary of not more than $5,000.

Drafted by a committee headed by Sen. Arnold Leonard (R) of Joplin, the bill was introduced yesterday so senators could study it during their Christmas recess which begins today.

Eye to Eye With Confucius yet Wonder 'Why We're Here'

By Hal Boyle

TSINGTAO, China, Dec. 13—(P)—Confucius once said "One look is worth a thousand words."

Several thousand marines, accepting his statement verbatim, have had a good long "look" at this ancient sage's home province and now they're almost unanimous that they don't want to waste words about getting out of here.

It is the only subject I ever knew more than two marines to agree upon.

Tsingtao is one of the chief ports of Shantung peninsula in northeast China and is important as a rail terminus, textile manufacturing center and coal shipping point.

You don't hear much talk here about "oil for the lamps of China." It's all about coal for the power plant at Shanghai.

Shantung peninsula is shaped roughly like a hound dog's head, with ice dripping from his whiskers. The nose juts out into the Yellow sea, which—here, at least—is no more yellow than a bottle of blueing.

Misleading

It is just another example of geography textbook writers misleading innocent school children.

If I ever set out to climb Mount Everest I will take along a candle in case it turns out to be a tunnel.

Confucius lived in Shantung province more happily than do American Marines, and still residing here are the 77th generation of his descendants.

The old philosopher might like to know that his sacred mountain, Tai Shaw, is still 5,056 feet tall and no rivals have appeared upon the landscape.

Tsingtao has sea bathing facilities and is one of dozen oriental cities wistfully known as "the Riviera of the Far East."

Once when the Kaiser had a navy there was a substantial German outpost in Tsingtao and Teutonic accents and red-tiled roofs linger from the old days.

Peddle Souvenirs

The city has a population of well over 500,000 and a visitor gets the impression well over half of the citizens are engaged in peddling souvenir bric-a-brac and garments of "genuine silk rayon"—whatever that means—at prices that make the Shanghai merchants look like philanthropists.

I talked here to two navy pharmacists who also served with the Marines on Okinawa. They emphasized repeatedly how much the Marines disliked their present position in China.

I know the Marines would bellyache 24 hours a day, even if they were on a 40-hour week," said Frank McCormick of 9 Lincoln avenue, "but they're the best fighting outfit in the world."

Wonder Why They're There

"Only, the main thing is this—they all want to know just what the hell we are doing over here. The only American property we have to protect is our own equipment."

The study class of Washington PTA will meet Tuesday at 2 p. m. at the school with Mrs. Frank Lewis as leader.

Groceryman Was Vital Link in Winning the War

J. R. Rawling, branch sales manager for H. J. Heinz Company returned to this city today from an important Pittsburgh food conference with the declaration that "The American groceryman stands as an inspiration to all who have the economic affairs of the nation at heart."

One of more than 28,000 men released from service with the AAF to date at this separation base, he served as a tail gunner.

At the time of his separation, appreciation for his services was expressed in a message from Brig. Gen. Y. H. Taylor, commanding general of Drew Field, stating "The Army Air Forces deeply appreciates your services. You have helped to make it possible for the aerial combat arm to contribute immeasurably to victory."

He served overseas in the European Theater of Operation with the 385th Bomb Group. He flew 5 missions over enemy territory. He holds the E. T. O. ribbon and the air medal. His wife, the former Miss Dora H. Harms lives in Sedalia, Mo.

from solved. Shortages exist in many lines of consumer goods and will continue that way for some time. The lack of essential materials prevents him from expanding his property or making needed repairs. Transportation troubles pose a stickler for him. That he will meet these problems I have no doubt, but we as consumers, should appreciate fully his difficulties and recognize the fact that he is doing his best."

"We should bear in mind," he added, "that the grocer, in spite of the harrassing problems of ration points, war-time transportation, the constant shortage of consumer goods and a serious lack of help, was primarily responsible for the maintenance and efficient operation of our vast food distribution system during the war."

"Without the vigorous exercise of his typically American determination to get things done and to meet the obligation imposed upon him by his customers, it can be safely said that this country, under the stress of war-time dislocation of population and supplies, might well have been faced with the man-made food shortage to the detriment of our all-out drive for victory."

"The grocer," Mr. Rawling pointed out, "even in the light of casual analysis of our food problem, deserves a vote of thanks from American industry, in general and from the housewife in particular. His concern to satisfy, even in part, the insatiable demand for our daily provender, kept him and his clerks in the wholesale markets and behind the retail counter long hours, and in many cases, seven days a week. It was the grocer who came through with the nutritious items of diet that kept the workers of this country fit and able to meet the challenge of incessant production demands. It was the grocer who supplied the householder with sufficient quantities of food and with varieties, that in spite of war, made the American table a well balanced and bountiful one."

"I am sure I am not straying far afield when I say that the grocer because of the very nature of his business, one that involves the human element as none other in the country, recognized early in the war that on the maintenance of customer good will depended his continuing success in the days of peace. His reconversion problem consisted of trying to keep people happy for the future, a no mean task, when one considers the handicaps under which he has operated and in some instances, continues to operate."

Pvt. Oral Jones has arrived in the states from the Pacific area and called his wife, who with their three daughters and one son resides at 1916 South Moniteau avenue, early this morning from California. He will go to Jefferson Barracks and expects to receive his discharge in time to be home for Christmas.

Pvt. Jones entered service in May 1944 and in January 1945 was sent to the European area.

The latter part of July he returned to the states on a thirty day furlough, after which he was sent to the Pacific area.

J. R. Rawling, branch sales manager for H. J. Heinz Company, returned to this city today from an important Pittsburgh food conference with the declaration that "The American groceryman stands as an inspiration to all who have the economic affairs of the nation at heart."

One of more than 28,000 men released from service with the AAF to date at this separation base, he served as a tail gunner.

At the time of his separation, appreciation for his services was expressed in a message from Brig. Gen. Y. H. Taylor, commanding general of Drew Field, stating "The Army Air Forces deeply appreciates your services. You have helped to make it possible for the aerial combat arm to contribute immeasurably to victory."

He served overseas in the European Theater of Operation with the 385th Bomb Group. He flew 5 missions over enemy territory. He holds the E. T. O. ribbon and the air medal. His wife, the former Miss Dora H. Harms lives in Sedalia, Mo.

from solved. Shortages exist in many lines of consumer goods and will continue that way for some time. The lack of essential materials prevents him from expanding his property or making needed repairs. Transportation troubles pose a stickler for him. That he will meet these problems I have no doubt, but we as consumers, should appreciate fully his difficulties and recognize the fact that he is doing his best."

"We should bear in mind," he added, "that the grocer, in spite of the harrassing problems of ration points, war-time transportation, the constant shortage of consumer goods and a serious lack of help, was primarily responsible for the maintenance and efficient operation of our vast food distribution system during the war."

"The grocer," Mr. Rawling pointed out, "even in the light of casual analysis of our food problem, deserves a vote of thanks from American industry, in general and from the housewife in particular. His concern to satisfy, even in part, the insatiable demand for our daily provender, kept him and his clerks in the wholesale markets and behind the retail counter long hours, and in many cases, seven days a week. It was the grocer who came through with the nutritious items of diet that kept the workers of this country fit and able to meet the challenge of incessant production demands. It was the grocer who supplied the householder with sufficient quantities of food and with varieties, that in spite of war, made the American table a well balanced and bountiful one."

"I am sure I am not straying far afield when I say that the grocer because of the very nature of his business, one that involves the human element as none other in the country, recognized early in the war that on the maintenance of customer good will depended his continuing success in the days of peace. His reconversion problem consisted of trying to keep people happy for the future, a no mean task, when one considers the handicaps under which he has operated and in some instances, continues to operate."

Pvt. Oral Jones has arrived in the states from the Pacific area and called his wife, who with their three daughters and one son resides at 1916 South Moniteau avenue, early this morning from California. He will go to Jefferson Barracks and expects to receive his discharge in time to be home for Christmas.

Pvt. Jones entered service in May 1944 and in January 1945 was sent to the European area.

The latter part of July he returned to the states on a thirty day furlough, after which he was sent to the Pacific area.

Back In States
Freddy Gene Roach, of the navy, grandson of Mrs. Joe Switzer, 802 South Osage avenue, has arrived in the States after serving two years in the Philippines and plans to visit Mrs. Switzer soon.

The business session was presided over by the president, Mrs. Loy Smith.

Mrs. Wilford Acker was hostess to the Home Builders class of the Presbyterian Sunday school for the annual Christmas party of the class at her home December 11.

Assistant hostesses were Mrs. Keith Davis, Mrs. Hubert Adams and Mrs. Roy Ragin.

A contributive dinner was served at the noon hour at small tables centered with Yule decorations and place cards. The home was decorated with Winter Greenery. Twenty-eight class members and the following guests enjoyed the dinner: Mrs. E. C. Vogelbaugh, Mrs. H. A. Hite, Mrs. Elmer Jadeligh, Mrs. Carl Sims, Miss Still, Miss Josephine Johnson, Miss Baum, Mrs. Charles Paige, Mrs. Forrest Calvert and Mrs. Floyd Brownfield.

For the devotional, Mrs. Carl Johnson gave a "Christmas Meditation," which consisted of the following: "The Christmas Story from Luke 2," "A Letter to Virginia" by the editor of the New York Sun, and "Christmas Bells" by Longfellow.

Following the devotional the exchange gifts were distributed and the gifts of the Cheeby chums were exchanged among the class members.

The meeting closed with the drawing of names for cheeby chums for the new year by the class members.

Fire caused by a defective flue destroyed the home of Albert Reeves December 10 at Camp Branch. The place is known as the Elmer Helman place. The family lost practically everything.

Atomic Research May be Major Weapon
In the Battle Against Mystery Diseases

This is the second of six authoritative dispatches by Peter Edson, chief of NEA's Washington Bureau, outlining the future of atomic power in a world at peace.

By PETER EDSON
NEA Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON—Vast expansion in every field of medical science awaits the lifting of military restrictions and the determination by Congress of future policy on atomic energy research. Nuclear energy holds great promise of relieving disease and human suffering.

This does not mean that atomic pills will soon be available on every drugstore counter to cure every ailment from dandruff to athlete's foot. For a long time the use of nuclear energy in medicine will be confined to research laboratories, or to clinics and the big hospitals with highly trained staffs.

Atomic energy is chiefly a research instrument. It will be used to study body functions and to gain a better understanding of the nature of diseases. It has no direct creative power, at this time.

Development of this new medical science may take 10 to 20 years, says Col. Stafford L. Warren, chief of the medical section of the Manhattan District, which developed the bomb.

Colonel Warren in civil life is professor of radiology of the University of Rochester College of Medicine. On the atomic bomb project he was responsible for all the health problems of the people who worked on the bomb and their families. The medical research on nuclear energy released in the making of the bombs was organized under his direction.

It began as a big problem in preventive medicine. Radiations from the release of nuclear energy can be extremely dangerous. They are like X-rays. If the human body is over-exposed to them, serious injury will result. Reproductive organs may be sterilized and even death may be caused.

Special Laboratories

One of the primary research problems was to find out how much shielding the atomic piles would require to make them thoroughly safe for workers in the plants. Dr. Robert Stone and his group at the University of Chicago worked out the safety factors for these operations.

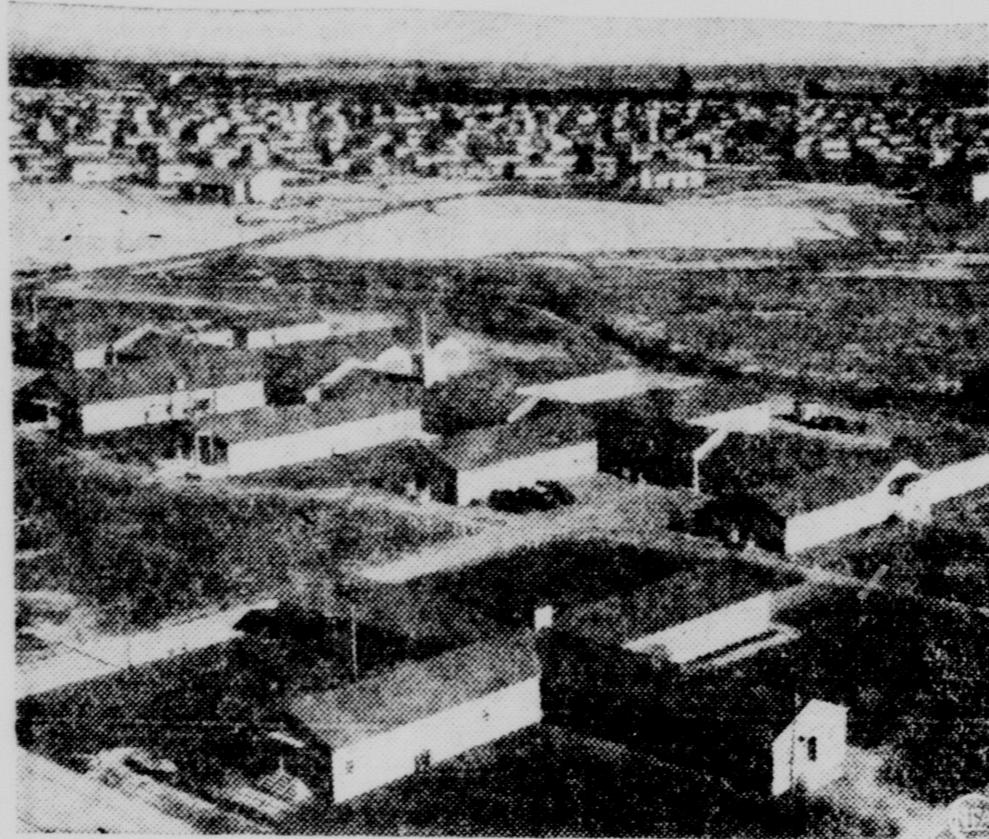

Because only small quantities of uranium had been used before, in the ceramics industry, little was known about the effects of uranium dust on the blood, the lungs, the kidneys.

Several hundred young doctors, biologists and chemists, along with a few older and more experienced heads, had to be recruited to conduct this research. They are the men to whom civilization owes a big debt for breaking the frontiers across these new fields of medicine. Their work was carried on at special health laboratories connected with the Clinton Engineer Works at Oak Ridge, Tenn., at Newark, Del., and in the medical research centers at Columbia, Rochester, Chicago and California universities.

First, the laboratories carried on their experiments on rabbits, mice, guinea pigs, goats and even on flies. Some of the animals, as controls, lived lives carefully guarded against uranium dust and nuclear energy radiations. Others were subject to varying exposures to these hazards in carefully air-conditioned cabinets for eight hours a day, six days a week.

These were the conditions under which workers in the plants had to do their job. The animals were then subjected to regular physical examinations and from these observations safety levels were set, from 10 to 100 times below the danger line for each hazard. Dr. Harold Hodges and his group at Rochester were in charge of much of this research.

Their results are almost unbelievable. Up to the time the bomb was dropped in Japan, not one worker lost his life or was injured from causes directly connected with the release of atomic energy. After the end of the war one young scientist did lose his life in an experiment, but it was only because he had disregarded safety precautions.

Hundreds of research men checked the effects of radio-activity and developed protective measures for workers in uranium separation process plants. Their work was so successful that hospitals like this one at the Richland, Wash., plant never had a patient who was injured or lost his life from causes directly connected with the release of atomic energy.

To achieve this unique safety record, many ingenious devices were developed in the Chicago and Rochester laboratories. Bits of film were put in identification badges. The films were developed periodically for traces of blackening from radiation. At exit gates of some of the laboratories there were concealed "counters" which sounded an alarm if anyone passed whose clothing, skin, or hair was contaminated. A device nicknamed a "Sneezy" measured the amount of radio-active dust in the air.

In all this preventive research, ways were found to shield the human body from the dangers of radiation and the way was paved for using these same emanations for mankind's future benefits. Dr. Andrew Dowdy of Rochester standardized these methods on animals.

Greatest Health Project
The combined work of the several hundred doctors, biologists and chemists assigned to medical research projects in the atomic bomb development represents the greatest health project ever undertaken. It showed how medical research should be carried out to achieve results quickly. Instead of a single research fellow doing a few lone wolf experiments a year on insufficient grants of money from foundations, there were complex experiments conducted jointly by specialists in several related fields.

In two years, working in this way, they learned more about the use of radio-active materials in medicine than had been learned in the previous 3 years or more. Yet their work has just begun, and it is in danger of being seriously interrupted. The young doctors and Ph. D.'s want to get back to teaching, private research and private practice. What is needed is a decision by Congress on how nuclear research is to be controlled. And appropriations of perhaps several million dollars a year are needed to complete the research just begun.

The quantity of material with which the laboratory technicians deal is sub-microscopic. They weight it out in terms of micrograms. A microgram is a millionth of a gram, and it takes 23 grams to make an avordupois ounce. Figure it out.

One of the uses of this infinitesimal amount of stuff is in what is known as the "tracer" technique. It was developed, in a crude way, before the war. Today it is worked something like this:

A small quantity of the material to be studied is put in an atomic pile and subjected to nuclear energy radiations. Say the material is iron. This iron in the pile becomes synthetically radio-active. It will behave chemically like all other iron, but for a limited time it will emit the tell-tale radiations that will reveal its location through the sensitive detection instruments that have been developed on the atomic bomb project.

as the million dollar mystery disease that needs a cure, but cancer is only one affliction that needs attention. Arthritis, for instance, is much more common and causes much more suffering. The correct tool to attack any of these mystery diseases has not been found yet but it is entirely possible that no effective treatment will be found.

The job ahead of the medical scientists is to conduct untiring research with the new tools made available through the release of atomic energy, to attack every disease. It means using the energy that would otherwise be stored up in bombs, to cure instead of to kill.

Hose Laid For Near Five Blocks

Fire virtually destroyed the small dwelling of Robert Burlingame, 221 East Twenty-eighth street Wednesday morning, with firemen fighting the blaze for about an hour. A hose line of 1,750 feet, extending approximately five blocks, was laid.

Damage was estimated at $250 to the building and $150 to the contents. Burlingame owned the property.

Cause of the fire was undetermined. The alarm was turned in at 10:55 a.m.

Job Outlook Brightening

New Estimate As Made Appears As Encouraging

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13—(P)—The national job outlook brightened Wednesday with indications there may be 3,000,000 fewer unemployed by spring than the government had figured.

Government experts, acknowledging that they over-estimated the bearish impact of reconversion on employment, now believe that not more than 5,000,000 will be seeking work by March, instead of the 8,000,000 officially forecast in October.

The 5,000,000 level may be sustained until mid-1946; then joblessness may decline as civilian production hits full stride—but officials now are wary of forecasting beyond the middle of next year.

One official described current unemployment as "amazingly small," probably ranging between 2,500,000 and 3,500,000. The War Manpower Commission had estimated that 6,000,000 would be unemployed by the year's end.

The new estimates include discharged veterans and others who are "resting" now, and thus not technically unemployed, but who will be in the labor market later.

Federal economists and statisticians are declining to be quoted at this stage—in fact, an informal ban on employment forecasts exists because of the error in earlier calculations—but it is known the revised conclusions are accepted by officials of the Office of Reconversion, the Census Bureau and other informed agencies.

Census estimates for November—which cover only actual job-hunters, not discharged veterans and others voluntarily idle for a time—support the trend. The newly-issued census report indicates November unemployment was 1,580,000 over the nation, or an increase of only 40,000 from October.

The reasons given are numerous. They include heavy withdrawals of women from the labor market, and an unsuspected demand for workers among small, non-war-businesses which apparently had been getting along with inadequate help.

Two other factors now loom as unexpectedly important: First, the lightness of layoffs in reconverting industries, and second, the high, sustained level of consumer purchasing.

Big companies—those in the excess profits tax brackets—have found they can keep workers on the payrolls at small cost as long as that tax is in effect. It expires January 1.

One thousand dollars worth of labor can be retained for about $150; in other words, if a company kept the $1,000 instead of paying it out in wages, the government would take $850 of it anyway in taxes.

Plants therefore have been holding onto their help, in expectation of rising production when the assembly lines really start rolling. They will continue to employ ahead of actual need, experts now believe, because the increase in output will continue for many months in most cases.

The other surprise element, consumer buying, has been well above estimates. The federal reserve index of department store sales has been running 10 to 13 percent above 1944 consistently, making 1945 an all-time record year.

Purchasing had been expected to drop off when the fat wartime paychecks grew leaner. Instead, there are indications that it may go on for at least six months ahead.

Top Salary To Louis B. Mayer

Movie Magnate Received $908,070 For One Year

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13—(P)—

The treasury issued a report on big incomes Wednesday night and the name of Louis B. Mayer led all the rest. The movie magnate got $908,070 from Lowe's Inc., for personal services in one year.

Mayer's top ranking was disclosed in a supplement to an earlier partial listing of individuals' income from corporations. The report as a whole covers returns for the calendar year of 1943 and fiscal years ending in 1943 and 1944.

Ranking immediately after Mayer, who was in front by nearly $450,000, were Charles E. Wilson, of General Motors, and Thomas J. Watson, of International Business Machines. Fred MacMurray, in fifth place, and Deanna Durbin, in tenth place were the only actors to make the first ten as individuals. But the income of comedians Bud Abbott and Lou Costello, which was reported as a single salary—$424,320—ranked fourth.

Income From Corporations

Following is the list of the 20 individuals who, according to the treasury statement, received the greatest income from corporations for personal services in one year: Louis B. Mayer, $908,070; Charles E. Wilson, $459,041; Thomas J. Watson, $423,548; Fred MacMurray, 419,166; Walter Wanger, Universal Pictures producer, $409,928; John B. Hawley, Jr., president of Northern Ordnance Inc., $400,000; Nicholas M. Schenck, president of Loew's $391,860; Ormond E. Hunt, General Motors, $350,519; Albert Bradley, General Motors, $350,432; Deanna Durbin, from Universal Pictures, $326,491; Barbara Stanwick from Paramount and Warner Bros., $323,333; E. H. Bobst, of Hoffmann La Roche, Inc., $308,175; John Thomas Smith, General Motors, $306,310; Donaldson Brown, General Motors, $306,160; Charles F. Kettering, General Motors, $306,117; Elmer J. Manix, Loew's $300,725; Sam Katz, Loew's $298,125; Harry L. (Bing) Crosby, $294,444; William Powell, $292,500, and David Bernstein, Lowe's $285,906.

Income taxes took a big bite out of these payments, however. The rates generally ranged from 50 per cent or more on income of $200,000 to about 90 per cent on income approaching $1,000,000.

"Working For Peanuts"

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12—(P)—A. Obici worked for peanuts in 1944, and then again he didn't.

The treasury disclosed tonight, in a report on high salaries, that as president of a peanut company, (Planters Nut and Chocolate Co.), he was paid $223,000.
